

ABSTRACT AMENDMENTS

Replace the paragraph at page 30, lines 2-8 with the following paragraph:

A disk drive provides system and apparatus provide for the automated manufacture test processing of itself of disk drives after it is the drive has been installed and operating within a computer system and it operating therein. The tests include typically, at the factory a number of tests are performed which include flaw mapping, embedded runout compensation and final drive verification and The automated system and method described herein provides for initiating and performing these tests such that they are completely performed and the disk is corrected to account for any errors discovered during the test, and such that the test does not interfere with the normal operations of the disk drive.